Many years ago, a young elf named Sven Yule was gathering pinecones in a North Pole forest, when he noticed a baby reindeer following him. When he realized she was lost and separated from her mother, he took her home for the night and fed her some carrots. The next day, the mother reindeer appeared, looking for her baby. When she found her safe and well, both reindeer decided Sven was their hero!

After this, the elf and his hooved friend often spent time together. The other reindeer began to trust him, too. His friends started to call him 'Cariboy' - 'caribou' is another word for 'reindeer', so the nickname fit him well!

In the meantime, Santa heard of Sven's special connection with reindeer, and offered him a job when he left school. Although he had never seen flying reindeer before, Sven's ability to communicate with them made him the perfect trainer. Now trusted and beloved by Santa's reindeer team, Cariboy works hard every day to help them stay in good health, and perform at their very best.

Antler Inn

All About Antler Inn

Sven Yule lives in a large, cozy house named Antler Inn. Why is it an inn? Well, Cariboy has never given up his habit of rescuing lost and injured reindeer, and over the years, there's usually been a caribou or two sharing his home. So, once he had saved up enough money from his pay packets, he extended the upper floors of his house, to create some extra living space for himself. Then, he converted the entire downstairs into special lodgings for reindeer. Now, any antlered friends needing a place to stay can head to Sven's inn, where they'll get a safe, cozy stall for the night, and of course, plenty of carrots.

Having seen Sven's generosity and kind-heartedness, Santa took him completely with his reindeer team. The animals need a very good shape for their long Christmas Eve journey throughout the year, Cariboy takes them on lots of practice runs. Sometimes, on clear nights, they journey a little further. If you ever look up into the night sky and see a bright light, you might have just spotted Sven and Santa's nightly practice run!

ELF LETTER

Dear ENTER NAME

It's nearly Christmas! Are you excited yet? I'm Sven Yule, Santa's Reindeer Master here at the North Pole.

You'll be pleased to hear that Santa's reindeer are all in good health, and ready for their big journey on Christmas Eve. But I'm writing to ask a small favor of you, if you don't mind.

You see, the reindeer's journey on Christmas Eve is a very, very long one. They have to fly super fast to make it to all the houses on time. Although we've been practicing so they won't get tired, they always get hungry part-way through!

So, Santa and his reindeer would really appreciate it if you could maybe leave out a carrot for them, before you go to bed on Christmas Eve? If you don't have carrots, any kind of snack will do, but carrots are their favorite.

With your help, they'll have plenty of energy to help Santa deliver all his presents. I know we can count on you!

Thank you and Merry Christmas,

Sven Yule
